WellSky's new API helps you build stronger community partnerships

Create new revenue streams and enhance community well-being by sharing your provider data.
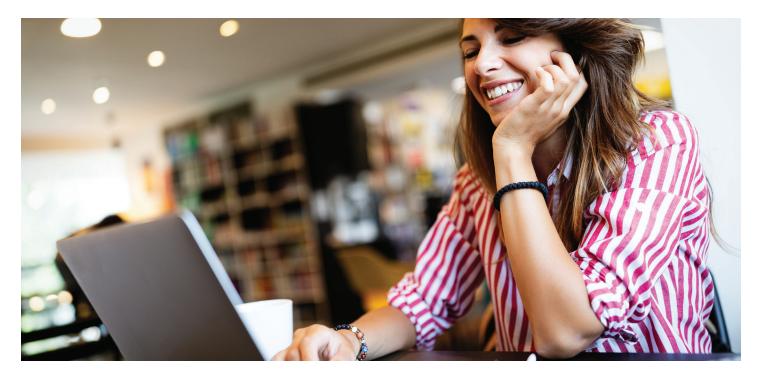

WellSky Community Services' Provider API allows you to collaborate with hospitals, government agencies, and other local partners in real time.

Your agency provides significant value to your community by curating and maintaining your resource provider database. Now you can create new revenue opportunities by sharing that data in a secure, controlled manner with community partners.

The Provider API (Application Programming Interface) is based on the widely accepted Open Referral Human Service Data Specification (HSDS). It makes the provider information in your WellSky Community Services system available to third parties.

Build stronger coalitions in your community

The Provider API enhances the collective impact of local community-based organizations. Hospitals can locate essential services to ensure patients get the support they need after discharge. Justice systems can point citizens to resources that can enhance their recovery and reduce recidivism. Counselors, social service agencies, and other local providers can find complementary services for their clients.

Your partners always receive up-to-date provider data

The API automatically pulls provider data from your system as it is requested, so your partners always receive the latest, most up-to-date information for making accurate referrals.

You control what data you share and who can access it

The API allows different software systems to query your resource information based on the AIRS Style Guide. You control which resources to share. The API can be turned off to prevent sharing after an agreement has expired. To learn more, review the Human Services Data API (HSDA) specifications used for the WellSky implementation.

Setup is fast. A WellSky team member will turn on the API for your site and help you through the implementation. The API is secured with an associated authentication token to prevent unauthorized access.
